Subject: Conflict Minerals Disclosure

On August 22, 2012 the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) adopted Final Rules which implement Section 1502 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act. These rules impose certain reporting and disclosure requirements on publicly-traded companies in the United States. In general, the regulations require that companies

- (a) Determine whether "Conflict Minerals" (tin, tungsten, tantalum and gold) are contained in the products they manufacture. If so,
- (b) Conduct a reasonable country of origin inquiry to determine whether the "Conflict Minerals" come from countries in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), one of the surrounding countries of Angola, Burundi, Central African Republic, Rwanda, South Sudan, Tanzania, Uganda or Zambia, or from recycled or scrap sources. And
- (c) Products that contain Conflict Minerals that originated from the DRC Countries that may finance or benefit armed groups, must be disclosed to the SEC and on the company's website.

Priority Wire & Cable has conducted a reasonable country of origin inquiry through extensive product and supply chain review and certifies that:

- No tantalum, gold or tungsten is used in any of the products distributed by Priority Wire & Cable.
- Products that contain the "Conflict Mineral" tin do not come from countries in the DRC or from recycled or scrap sources.

The preliminary specific Conflict Mineral status of all current Priority Wire & Cable products is available upon request.

Additional information on the Conflict Mineral regulation can be accessed on the SEC website at:
